Weeks of April 17-22, 2017

Interesting Facts for the Week

Pepsi is being sued because of its Naked Juice marketing. While the juice is marketed as "healthy", it actually has a higher sugar content than an equivalent amount of Pepsi Cola. Coke was sued for the "unwarranted health claims" on their product Vitaminwater. Coke's defense was "no consumer could reasonably be misled into thinking vitamin water was a healthy beverage."

One minute each night, skyscrapers, tugboats, hotels, a yacht club and police cruisers send a blinking goodnight message to sick kids inside Hasbro children's hospital Providence. R.I.

Pena

- Because of our extremely shortened six week's grading periods, keep in mind that the next set of progress reports will be due to Mrs. Dhane by Tuesday (May 2nd) by 3pm.

"Sure, it's nice, son, but even humans can build a decent dam with concrete."

- Remind students that we are still in school and need to keep the rules in mind (cell phone usage, dress code, being good citizens with each other, etc.) AND keep working hard.
