Interesting Facts for the Week

A Finnish sniper named Simo Häyhä was able to kill around 500 Soviet soldiers in the Winter War of 1939 by literally hiding in the snow and taking random shots every couple of hours. In March 1940 he was struck in the jaw by an explosive bullet and seriously wounded. He was very disfigured, unconcious, and presumed dead when he was found, and later he was thrown onto a pile of bodies. A fellow soldier noticed a leg twitching in the pile, and they brought him home alive. He lived to be 96.

Jack Daniel (yeah, that Jack Daniel) died from an infected stubbed toe caused by him kicking a safe containing money to which he had forgotten the combination. There's a moral lesson there somewhere, but I would have a hard time deciding where to begin.

this week

After School Detention

Cruz

- © Notice: May 3-7 is Teacher Appreciation Week, so in honor of that, we'll have a Carlito's Restaurant catered meal scheduled for Monday the 3rd at lunch.

this/next week

- © We are on the downhill slope for getting students test-ready. Use every minute of instruction wisely, and remind them of the reward of the Proficiency & Restoration week that is OFYP replacement next year.
